CHIAPPANELLI for all his work on our behalf in Seattle.

We look forward to seeing you in October. In the meantime, we hope you are having a wonderful summer, and "let's be careful out there!"

1998 Annual Meeting: Seattle, October 22-24

Make plans now to attend the Society's 1998 meeting in Seattle, where we will meet at the Seattle Hilton. For reservations, call 1-800-426-0535 (for non-residents of Washington State) or 1-800-542-7000 (for Washington residents) by October 1. Please mention that you are attending the American Society for Legal History Meeting in order to receive conference rates.

President LAURA KALMAN has appointed Daniel Ernst of the Georgetown University Law Center chair of the program committee. His committee includes Charles Donahue, Jr. of the Harvard Law School, Christian Fritz of the University of New Mexico School of Law, Ariela Gross of the University of Southern California School of Law, William Novak of the University of Chicago, Schlegel! of the SUNY-Buffalo School of Law, Barbara Welke of the University of Oregon, and Rosemarie Zagari of George Mason University. Eric Chiappinelli of the University of Seattle School of Law is in charge of local arrangements.

Check out the H-LAW web page (www.h-net.msu.edu/~law/) for the complete program and abstracts of the papers to be presented. Once you've seen the exciting program Dan and his committee have assembled and think about sampling all Seattle has to offer, you won't want to miss this year's meeting.

All About Us

An analysis of the Society's membership, as of June 1998, reveals that membership remains about the same as it was in late 1996, the last time such an analysis was done. Domestic membership is up slightly, while international membership is down slightly.

Of course, the figures were generated at different points in the year, so they are not completely comparable. Assuming that we will have additional 1998 memberships in the coming months, however, we might end the year with a larger membership. The 1996 numbers are indicated in parentheses.

Donald Sutherland Prize

The Society invites nominations for the 1997 Donald Sutherland Prize, which is given annually to recognize the article deemed to be the most significant contribution to English legal history. Nominations may include articles published in journals or collections of original essays and must have a 1997 publication date.

Please submit nominations and 3 copies of the article nominated by September 1, 1998 to Professor DeLloyd Guth; Chair, Sutherland Prize Committee; Faculty of Law; University of Manitoba; Winnipeg, Manitoba; CANADA R3T-2N2.

1998 Elections

Thanks to the 1998 Nominating Committee for their dedication and diligence in selecting a strong slate of candidates for this year's elections. Members of the committee include DAVID J. SEIPP of Boston University, chair; SARAH BARRINGER GORDON, University of Pennsylvania; MICHAEL GROSSBERG, Indiana University; VICTORIA LIST, Washington and Jefferson College; and RAYMAN SOLOMON, Northwestern University.

The committee has selected 10 candidates to fill 5 positions for three-year terms on the Board of Directors and 4 nominees to fill 2 three-year terms on the Nominating Committee. Brief biographies of the candidates follow.

A tear-out ballot is included in this issue of The Newsletter. Please complete it and return by October 1, 1998 to: Donald G. Nieman, ASLH, Department of History, Bowling Green State University, Bowling Green, OH 43403.

Biographies of Board of Directors Nominees

GREG ALEXANDER is Professor of Law at Cornell Law School, where he teaches courses on property law and American legal history. His recently-published book, Commodity & Propriety: Competing Visions of Property in American Legal Thought, 1776-1970, was named best book of the year (1997) in law by the Association of American Publishers. His historical scholarship includes "Time and Property in the American Republican Legal Culture" in NYU Law Review and "The Transformation of Trusts as a Legal Category" in Law & History Review, which was awarded the Surrency Prize by the Society. He is an active participant in the Society and has served on the planning committee for the annual meeting. During the 1997-98 academic year he was visiting Professor of Law at Harvard Law School.

THOMAS J. DAVIS is Professor of History in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences and Faculty Associate in the College of Law at Arizona State University in Tempe. Elected to Phi Beta Kappa, he earned an A.B. in history and philosophy from Fordham University, an M.A. and Ph.D. in U.S. and African history from Columbia University, an M.A. in journalism from Ball State University, and a J.D. from the State University of New York at Buffalo. He teaches U.S. constitutional and legal history, race and the law, labor law and history, and civil rights law and history. His writings include an edition of The New York Conspiracy (1971), A Rumor of Revolt: The 'Great Negro Plot' in Colonial New York (1985), Africans in the Americas: A History of the Black Diaspora (1994) with Michael L. Conniff, and various articles. A visiting fellow at the American Bar Foundation and twice a Fulbright fellow, he has held fellowships also from the U.S. Department of Education, New York State, the Ford Foundation, NEH, and the Smithsonian Institution. A life-member of the ASLH, he has served on the Publications Committee since 1997 and on the editorial board of the Law and History Review since 1995.

HERBERT A. JOHNSON, Hollings Professor of Constitutional Law at the University of South Carolina, has been a member of the Society for thirty-seven years. He was President of the Society (1974-75), Vice-President (1972-73), and Executive Assistant to the President (1970-71). He represented the Society as its delegate to the American Council of Learned Societies (1977-80). His served on committees on Honors (1970-71, 1997-98), Program (chair, 1971), Publications (1966-69), Preservation of Court Records (1968-69), and Surrency Prize (1982-87, 1996). A former editor of The Papers of John Marshall (vols. 1 and 2), he is the author of The Chief Justiceship of John Marshall (1997), American Legal and Constitutional History: Cases and Materials (1994), and History of Criminal Justice (1995) with Nancy T. Wolfe. He co-authored Foundations of Power—John Marshall, 1801-1815, vol. 2, History of the Supreme Court of the United States (1981) with George L. Haskins. He has taught American constitutional and legal history at Hunter College, City University of New York (1964-67), the College of William and Mary (1967-77), and the University of South Carolina (1977-present). Johnson was awarded degrees by Columbia University (A.B., M.A., and Ph.D.) and New York Law School (LL.B.)

YASUhide KAWASHIMA, a native of Nagasaki, Japan, is Professor of History at the University of Texas at El Paso and a charter member of the ASLH. He received his law degrees from Keio University, Tokyo and B.A., M.A., and Ph.D. from the University of California at Santa Barbara, and was a Charles Warren Fellow in American Legal History at Harvard Law School. He teaches American legal history, early American history, and East Asian legal history. He is author of Puritan Justice and the Indian, co-author of English Law and the American Experience, and editor of the Connecticut/Rhode Island volume of Early American Indian Documents: Treaties and Laws. His The Murder of John Sassamon will be published next year by the University Press of Kansas in its Landmark Law Cases and American Society series. He has also published numerous articles in such journals as the American Journal of Legal History, New England Quarterly, Kansas Law Review, Journal of Family Law, Law in Japan, and British Columbia Law Review. He has served on the Council of the American Society for Ethnohistory, on the Board of Reviewers of the Institute for Massachusetts Studies, and on various committees of the American Historical Association, and other societies. He has received a number of fellowships, including those from the Social Science Research Council, Colonial Williamsburg, the John Carter Brown Library, the Huntington Library, and the Japan Foundation.

BRUCE H. MANN is Professor of Law and History at the University of Pennsylvania, where he has taught in the Law School and the Department of History since 1987. He has also taught as a visiting or permanent member of the faculty at the law schools of Washington University (MO), Harvard, and the universities of Connecticut, Houston, Texas, and Michigan, and in the History Department at Princeton. He did his undergraduate work at Brown and received his law degree and Ph.D. in history from Yale. His publications include Neighbors and Strangers: Law and Community in Early Connecticut (1987) and articles in the William and Mary Quarterly, the Law and Society Review, and other law journals. He is currently editing, with Christopher L. Tomlins, a volume of conference papers, The Many Legalities of Early America, which will be published next year by the University of North Carolina Press for the Omohundro Institute of Early American History and Culture, and is finishing a book manuscript entitled "Prisoners of Hope: Debt and Failure in the Age of American Independence." He has been a member of the ASLH for nearly twenty-five years, during which he has served on the Program Committee for the 1984 and 1985 annual meetings, chaired the Program Committee for the 1986 annual meeting, and served on the Nominating Committee (1982), the Surrency Prize Committee (1994-1997), and the Publications Committee (1997-present). He was a member of the Board of Directors from 1987-89 and Editor of the Law and History Review from 1987-93.

RICHARD ROSS has been Assistant Professor at the University of Chicago Law School since 1993, where he teaches American legal history and Property. He received his B.A. (1984), J.D. (1989), and Ph.D. in history (1998) from Yale University. His most recent articles are "The Commoning of The Common Law: The Renaissance Debate over Printing English Law, 1520-1640" in the University of Pennsylvania Law Review (1998), and "The Memorial Culture of Early Modern English Lawyers: Memory as Keyword, Shelter, and Identity, 1560-1640," in the Yale Journal of Law and the Humanities (1998). These articles are part of an ongoing study working toward a book on the intellectual history of legal communications in early America and early modern England. The project explores the perceived risks, advantages, and repercussions of employing print, manuscript, oral tradition, and memory as ways of preserving and disseminating law. It does this comparatively—looking at England vs. America, and at legal knowledge vs. medical, scientific, and religious knowledge. Ross has held fellowships from Yale Law School and Yale's Institution for Social and Policy Studies; has been a visiting scholar in the Harvard History Department; and in 1998-99 will serve as the director of the University of Chicago's Legal History Workshop.

AVI SOIFER is a Professor of Law at Boston College Law School where he recently completed five years as Dean. He teaches courses primarily in American legal history and Constitutional Law. He has served as a member of the ASLH Board of Directors (1990-92); the Nominating Committee (1995-97); and the Board of Editors of Law and History Review (1988-93); and as a panelist, commentator, and chair at many annual meetings. He received his B.A., M.U.S., and J.D. degrees from Yale, and has held Law and Humanities Fellowships at Harvard and Stanford. Before coming to Boston College, he taught at the University of Connecticut and Boston University. His recent publications include: "Born Classified, Born Free: An Essay for Henry Schwarzschild," Symposium on the Pentagon Papers, 19 Cardozo Law Review 1601 (1998); "Who Took the Awe Out of Law?" 3 Graven Images 173 (1996); "Facts, Things, and the Orphans of Girard College: Francis Lieber, Protopragmatist," 16 Cardozo Law Review 2305 (1995); and Law and the Company We Keep (1995). He currently serves on the Boards of the Jacob Blaustein Institute for the Advancement of Human Rights; the New England Medical Center; the Mental Health Legal Advisors; the Society of American Law Teachers; and the Steering Committee of the U.S. First Circuit Court of Appeals Task Forces on Gender, Race, and Ethnic Bias.

CHRISTOPHER WALDREP, Associate Professor of History at Eastern Illinois University, serves on the Publications Committee and has edited H-Law since 1993. Starting this year he has edited the H-Law web page and the National Constitution Center website. He received his Ph.D. from Ohio State University. At Eastern he teaches courses in legal, constitutional, and social history. His research focuses on race, particularly in the American South, and on the relationship between criminal justice and vigilantism. His publications include Night Riders: Defending Community in the Black Patch, 1890-1915 (1993); Roots of Disorder: Race and Criminal Justice in the American South, 1817-80 (Fall 1998); as well as articles in the American Historical Review, the Journal of American History, the Journal of Southern History, the Journal of Social History, and other journals. He is currently working on a book tentatively entitled "Word and Deed: Lynching in America from Charles Lynch to Clarence Thomas." He has won fellowships and awards from the National Endowment for the Humanities, the American Philosophical Society, the American Bar Association, Eastern Illinois University, the American Council of Learned Societies, the American Historical Association, and the Illinois Humanities Council.

SUE SHERIDAN WALKER is Professor of History at Northeastern Illinois University in Chicago. She received her Ph.D. from the University of Chicago (1966). Her research focuses on medieval English law concerning widows, wards, and marriage. Her publications include The Court Rolls of the Manor of Wakefield from October 1331-September 1333 (1982); Wife and Widow in Medieval England (1993); and articles in journals such as Medieval Studies, American Journal of Legal History, Journal of Medieval History, Journal of Legal History, and collections of essays such as Peter Birks's The Life of the Law (1993). Walker's ASLH service includes three terms as Board member, member of numerous committees, panelist, commentator, and session chair. She was Book Review Editor and Editorial Board member for the American Journal of Legal History and was Editorial Board member of the Law and History Review. In addition, she organized two international conferences devoted to British Legal Manuscripts. Presently, she serves on the Council of The Pipe Roll Society.

BARBARA Y. WELKE joins the History Department at the University of Minnesota this fall as an Assistant Professor. For the last three years she has been an Assistant Professor of History at the University of Oregon. She teaches in the fields of U. S. legal, constitutional, and women's history, and 19th and 20th century U. S. history. She received her Ph. D. in History from the University of Chicago (1995), her J. D. from University of Michigan Law School (1983), and her B. A. from the University of Kansas (1980). Her publications include an article titled "Unreasonable Women: Gender and the Law of Accidental Injury, 1870-1920," in Law & Social Inquiry (1994) and "When All the Women Were White, and All the Blacks Were Men: Gender, Class, Race, and the Road to Plessy, 1855-1914," in Law & History Review (1995) which was awarded the ASLH's Erwin C. Surrency Prize. She is currently working on a book titled "Gendered Journeys: Railroads, Injury, and Law in the Making of Modern America, 1865-1920" based on her dissertation which was awarded the OAH's Lerner-Scott Prize and the University of Chicago's Divisional Dissertation Prize. She has held fellowships from the American Bar Foundation, the Mellon Foundation, and the Newberry Library. Since 1996 Barbara Welke has served as a member of the editorial board of the Law & History Review and is currently serving on the program committee for the upcoming meeting of the ASLH in Seattle.

Biographies of Nominating Committee Candidates

MARY DUDZIAK is a Professor of Law at the University of Southern California. She began her teaching career at the University of Iowa College of Law in 1986, where she had a zero-time joint appointment with the History Department from 1996-98. She was a Visiting Professor of Law at USC during the 1997-98 academic year. Professor Dudziak's degrees are from the University of California, Berkeley (A.B. Sociology 1978), and Yale University (J.D. 1984, Ph.D. American Studies 1992). She has served two terms on the ASLH Board of Directors and the Executive Committee, was Program Committee Chair for the 1993 Annual Meeting, and has served on the Documentary Preservation Committee, Program Committee for the 1988 Annual Meeting, and other committees. Her legal history courses include The Constitution in the Twentieth Century, Law and Social Change in Postwar America, and The Civil Rights Movement and Civil Rights Law. She also teaches Constitutional Law and Immigration. Among Professor Dudziak's publications are: "The Little Rock Crisis and Foreign Affairs: Race, Resistance and the Image of American Democracy," 70 Southern California Law Review 1641 (1977); "Josephine Baker, Racial Protest and the Cold War," 81 Journal of American History 543 (1994); "Desegregation as a Cold War Imperative," 41 Stanford Law Review 61 (1988); and "The Limits of Good Faith: Desegregation in Topeka, Kansas, 1950-1956," 5 Law and History Review 351 (1987). Her book Cold War Civil Rights: Civil Rights and Foreign Affairs After World War II is under contract with Princeton University Press. She is a frequent speaker at meetings of the ASLH, Organization of American Historians, and other scholarly conferences. During the summer of 1998, she will participate in the OAH/NYU meeting on the internationalization of the study of American history in Florence, Italy.

PHILIP HAMBURGER teaches contracts and American legal history at George Washington University Law School, where he is the Oswald Symister Colclough Research Professor of Law. Prior to joining the George Washington faculty in 1991, he taught at the University of Connecticut. He is a graduate of Princeton University (1979) and Yale Law School (1982). His work on early modern England has included articles on libel law in Stanford Law Review, on the Statute of Frauds in American Journal of Legal History, on contract law in Law and History Review, and on revolution and judicial review in Columbia Law Review. More recently, he has written articles on issues in eighteenth- and nineteenth-century American history, including the constitutional accommodation of social change in Michigan Law Review, the use of different notions of equality as a response to diversity in Supreme Court Review, the tension between regulation and ideas of natural rights in Yale Law Journal, religious exemptions in George Washington Law Review, and what early Americans called "trivial" rights in Notre Dame Law Review. Currently, he is writing two books on the history of religious liberty in the United States—one concerning the exemption problem, the other, separation of church and state. His articles have twice received the ASLH's Sutherland Prize.

ARTHUR F. MCEVOY is J. Willard Hurst Professor of Law at the University of Wisconsin, Madison. He has held appointments in the Department of History at Northwestern University and the American Bar Foundation. He holds a Ph.D. in History (1979) from the University of California at San Diego and a J.D. (1989) from the Stanford Law School. He is the author of The Fisherman's Problem: Ecology and Law in the California Fisheries, 1850-1980 (1986), and is currently at work on a history of industrial safety law in the United States. He has been a member of the ASLH Board of Directors since 1995. He was chair of the ASLH Program Committee in 1991-1992. He is co-editor, with Christopher Tomlins, of the Cambridge University Press series Law and Society in American History.

EMILY ZACK TABUTEAU is Associate Professor and Associate Chair of the Department of History at Michigan State University, where she has taught English legal and constitutional history since 1977. She received her A.B. (1964), A.M. (1966) and Ph.D. (1975) degrees from Harvard University. Her research is on Norman and Anglo-Norman law, and her publications include Transfers of Property in Eleventh-Century Norman Law. She has served on the board of directors of the American Society for Legal History and on the program committees for two annual meetings and currently serves on the editorial board of the Law and History Review.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

National Humanities Center Fellowships Announced

The National Humanities Center has awarded fellowships to 38 scholars for the 1998-99 academic year. The winners were selected from over 500 applications submitted. Among those awarded fellowships are ASLH member Jonathan A. Bush (University of Santa Clara School of Law) who is working on a major study of the American Nuremberg trials, 1946-1949. Other fellows whose work may be of interest to members of the Society are MICHAEL LIENESCH of University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill ("Rethinking Scopes: The Scopes Trial and the Politics of Progress") and MARTIN JAY STONE of Duke University ("The Significance of Doing and Suffering: Philosophical Foundations of Tort Law").

Wilson Center Fellows for 1998-99 Announced

The Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars has announced the appointment of 21 fellows for the 1998-99 academic year. Among those selected are STUART A. BANNER, associate professor of law at American University, who is engaged in writing a history of the death penalty in America and MARK A. GRABER, associate professor of government at the University of Maryland, who is at work on a political history of judicial review in America.

American Antiquarian Society Fellows

The American Antiquarian Society has awarded Ann Fidler, a member of the Society and Assistant Professor of History at Ohio University, the Stephen Botein Fellowship for 1998-99 for her study, "A Cultural History of the American Law Book." The fellowship was created to honor the memory of ASLH member Stephen Botein.

Other fellows selected for 1998-99 include BARRY LEVY of the History faculty at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst, who is at work on a project entitled "The Ordeal of Early American Equality: Orphans, Poor Children, and the Massachusetts Labor Regime, 1630-1820."

Massachusetts Historical Society Fellows

ASLH member Sally Hadden has been awarded a W.B.H. Dowse Fellowship by the Massachusetts Historical Society for her study, "The Evolution of Legal Culture in Early American Cities: Boston, Charleston, Philadelphia."

Guggenheim Fellows for 1998-99

The John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation has awarded fellowships to several scholars whose work may be of interest to members of the Society. These include: RICHARD D. BROWN, Professor of History, University of Connecticut, "Family Violence and Community Justice in the Early American Republic;" SUZANNE DESAN, Associate Professor of History, University of Wisconsin-Madison, "Family Law, Gender, and Politics in Revolutionary France;" JAMES R. FARR, Professor of History, Purdue University, "The Giroux Affair and the Law in 17th-Century France;" and ROBIN CHAPMAN STACEY, Associate Professor of History and Adjunct Associate Professor of Women's Studies, University of Washington, "The Performance of Law in Early Ireland."

Yale Law Journal Conference

The Yale Law Journal invites you to attend a conference entitled "Moments of Change: Transformation in American Constitutionalism." The conference is open to the public and will be held at the Yale Law School, New Haven, Connecticut on September 26-27, 1998.

The conference will consist of four panels, with comments at the end of each day by Professor Bruce Ackerman, Yale Law School. The conference is occasioned by the publication of volume 2 in Professor Ackerman's three-volume work, We the People. ASLH members participating in the conference include MICHAEL LES BENEDICT, ROBERT GORDON, William Leuchtenburg, SANFORD LEVINSON, and LAURA KALMAN.

For further information on the conference, please contact Claire Priest, Symposium Committee, Yale Law Journal, claire.priest@yale.edu.

Massachusetts Legal History Journal

Massachusetts Legal History: A Journal of the Supreme Judicial Court Historical Society welcomes article submissions on any area of Massachusetts legal history. The Journal will be accepting submissions for the Spring 1999 volume through September 1998. Please direct submissions to Anne C. Peters, Deputy Director, Supreme Judicial Court Historical Society, 1200 Court House, Pemberton Square, Boston, MA 02108-1792

Student Essay Competition

The Supreme Judicial Court Historical Society is sponsoring an essay competition open to students of Massachusetts history and law. The winning essay will be published in Volume 5 of the Massachusetts Legal History, the Society's journal, to be released March 1999. In addition, the winning author will receive a $500 honorarium.

Essays should address any topic in Massachusetts history which has affected the laws of the Commonwealth and/or the Nation. Essays should be no greater than twenty-five double-spaced typed pages (including notes) and should be submitted with endnotes rather than footnotes. Textual references and endnotes must be in accordance with Rule 2 of The Bluebook: A Uniform System of Citation (16th ed. 1996). Essays should be submitted in both hard copy and on diskette in an IBM compatible format. All essays submitted become the property of the Society and are submitted for exclusive publication by the Society.

Entries should be received no later than Friday, October 9, 1998, addressed to: Anne C. Peters, Deputy Director, Supreme Judicial Court Historical Society, 1200 Courthouse, One Pemberton Square, Boston, MA 02108-1792

National Humanities Center Fellowships, 1999-2000

The National Humanities Center offers 35-40 fellowships for advanced study in all fields of the humanities. The Center provides an environment for individual research and fosters the exchange of ideas among scholars. Both senior and junior scholars are eligible for fellowships, but the latter should be engaged in research beyond the subject of their doctoral dissertations. Fellowships are for the academic year (September-May). Scholars from any nation may apply for fellowships. In addition to scholars from fields normally associated with the humanities, representatives of the natural and social sciences, the arts, the professions, and public life may be awarded fellowships if their work has humanistic dimensions.

For application material, write to Fellowship Program, National Humanities Center, Post Office Box 12256, Research Triangle Park, North Carolina 27709-2256. Applicants must submit the Center's forms supported by a c.v., a 1000-word project proposal, and three letters of recommendation. Applications and letters of recommendation must be postmarked by October 15, 1998. The Center's web address is <http://www.nhc.rtp.nc.us:8080>.

Woodrow Wilson Center Fellowships, 1999-2000

Located in the heart of Washington, D.C., the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars annually awards residential fellowships to approximately 20 individuals with outstanding project proposals in the humanities and social sciences on national and international issues. The Center especially welcomes projects likely to foster communication between the world of ideas and the world of public affairs.

Men and women from any country and from a wide variety of backgrounds may apply. Applicants must hold a doctorate or have equivalent professional accomplishments. Fellows are provided offices, access to the Library of Congress, computer or manuscript typing services, and research assistants. Fellowships are normally for an academic year. Limited funds make it desirable for most applicants to seek supplementary sources of funding. The average support is $41,600, inclusive of travel expenses and 75% of health insurance premiums for Fellows, their spouses, and their dependent children.

The application deadline is October 1, 1998. For application materials write to: Fellowships Office, Woodrow Wilson Center, 1000 Jefferson Drive, S.W., SI MRC 022, Washington, D.C. 20560. Phone: (202) 357-2841; E-mail: WCFELLOW@SIVM.SI.EDU; Fax: (202) 357-4439; Website: <http://wics.si.edu>.

The editor of a one-volume encyclopedia with the working title "Historical Encyclopedia of U.S. Independent Counsel Investigations" is seeking contributing authors with backgrounds in 20th century history, political science, or law to write concise articles on persons, concepts, and cases related to the establishment and reauthorization of the independent counsel office. For further information, please contact Gerald S. Greenberg, EHS Library, Ohio State University, 1813 N. High St., Columbus, OH 43210. (614) 292-2075. E-Mail: greenberg.3@osu.edu.

Supreme Court Historical Society Lecture Series

The Supreme Court Historical Society resumes its lecture series, titled "Civil Rights and the Supreme Court: The African-American Journey," this fall. The series examines the evolution of African-American Civil Rights in the wake of the Civil War and into the Twentieth Century, and the role the Supreme Court played in this process.

The schedule for lectures follows. All lectures begin at 6:00 p.m. at the Supreme Court of the United States and are followed by a reception.

Wednesday, October 7, 1998: Professor JOHN HOPE FRANKLIN (Duke University), "Race, the Court and the Nation," introduced by Associate Justice STEPHEN G. BREYER.

Wednesday, October 21, 1998: Professor PAUL WILSON (University of Kansas), "Brown v. the Board of Education: The Kansas View," introduced by Associate Justice Clarence Thomas.

Wednesday, November 4, 1998: Professor JACK GREENBERG (Columbia University), "Brown v. Board of Education: The NAACP View," introduced by Associate Justice John Paul Stevens.

Wednesday, November 18, 1998: Professor GERALD ROSENBERG (University of Chicago), "African-American Rights after Brown," introduced by Associate Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg.

Advanced reservations are required. Please call the Supreme Court Historical Society at 202-543-4000 for reservations or more information. Information may also be obtained from the Society's website at: <http://www.supremecourthistory.org>.

National Archives Digital Classroom Projects

The National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) announces two new Digital Classroom projects on its website: "The Fight for Equal Rights: Black Soldiers in the Civil War" and "Woman Suffrage and the 19th Amendment." The projects present items such as historical documents, photographs, and links to related sites.

"The Fight for Equal Rights" explores the steps taken by the Lincoln Administration to authorize the recruitment of African American troops and the results of their service in war. Many of the documents included in this project come from the Compiled Military Service Records of the United States Colored Troops. The project can be found at <http://www.nara.gov/education/teaching/usct/home.html>.

"Woman Suffrage and the 19th Amendment" focuses on the woman suffrage supporters who lectured, wrote, marched, lobbied, and practiced civil disobedience to achieve what many Americans considered a radical change in the Constitution. The project can be found at <http://www.nara.gov/education/teaching/woman/home.html>.

These projects are the latest in a series of Digital Classroom projects that the NARA has produced for teachers and students on the web site. Other subjects covered on the NARA's web site include units on the Amistad Case and the Constitution. For a complete listing, visit <http://www.nara.gov/education/teaching>.
